Former Ambassador-at-Large Mr Gopinath Pillai served Singapore with distinction over more than three decades, both at home and abroad.

Mr Pillai contributed significantly to Singapore's relations with South Asia. With India, he deepened our bilateral business links. He became our Special Envoy to Andhra Pradesh, and in that role advised the state government on the development of its new capital city, and at the same time explored opportunities for Singapore companies to invest in the state. As Chairman of the Institute of South Asian Studies (ISAS), he nurtured greater understanding of the sub-continent, including spearheading the inaugural South Asian Diaspora Convention.

Mr Pillai also served as Non-Resident Ambassador to Iran, and Non-Resident High Commissioner to Pakistan.

As Chairman of the Hindu Advisory Board, he advised the Government on matters of importance to Hindus. A prominent and highly respected member of Singapore's small Malayalee community, he helped set up tertiary scholarships for young Malayalees and promoted the Malayalam language.
